Your thoughts on Brexit

1. Executive Summary

In June 2016 the UK voted in a referendum to leave the European Union (EU). Of those that did, 52% of people voted to leave the EU. Of those who voted in Scotland, 62% voted to remain in the EU. The UK is scheduled to leave the EU in March 2019. Before then, the UK Government and the EU have to decide how the UK leaves the EU and what the future relationship between the UK and the EU will be like.

The Scottish Government believes that it is vital to gather the opinions of children and young people to make sure their voices are heard during Brexit negotiations. To support such insight gathering, Young Scot worked with the Scottish Government to develop a survey. The purpose of the survey was to identify how Brexit is currently affecting young people in Scotland and what impact they believe it will have in the future. The survey was hosted on our preferred third-party website Survey Gizmo between 24th November 2017 and 11th March 2018, receiving 593 complete responses.

General Thoughts

- Most respondents (70%) don't think [Brexit] is a good result; 9% think it's a good result.
- When asked if the result has affected them, 42% stated that Yes I think it has affected me and 16% stated No I don't think it has affected me.
- Three quarters of respondents stated that they think [Brexit] will affect them in the future, while 4% don't think [Brexit] will affect their future.
- When asked what was important to them in Brexit negotiations, 461 respondents typed an answer. These responses were categorised into 10 key themes: Trade/Economy, Travel/Free Movement, Fairness of deal, Education/Employment, Relationship with EU, Rights, Scottish Role in Brexit, Health, Law and Other Factors.
- When asked if there were any specific benefits from EU membership that they were concerned about missing out on, 443 typed an answer. These responses were categorised into 13 key themes: Travel/Free Movement, Trade/Economy, Education/Employment, Funding, Safety/Security, Health, Relationship with EU, Rights, Law, Environmental Factors, Roaming Charges, Cultural Factors and Other Factors.

Current or Future Career

- Of those respondents who are employed, 10% think that Brexit's effect has been positive and 39% think that it has been negative on their current employment situation. Around half (51%) stated that Brexit has had no effect on their employment situation.
- In terms of how Brexit will affect workers, 37% said they were not sure how Brexit will affect them as a worker and just over a quarter haven't given it much thought. Of those that think there will be an effect, more respondents think this will be negative (32%) rather than positive (5%).

Final Thoughts

- Around half of respondents (49%) provided further comments. These responses were categorised into seven key themes: General Opinion, Scottish Role in Brexit, Issues Regarding Young People, Remain/Another Vote, General Politics, Benefits/Factors and Other.

Important Notes

Thematic Analysis of Qualitative Responses

Responses to the qualitative questions have undergone thematic analysis. Each response was individually read and categorised into relevant secondary themes. In some cases, a response met the criteria of more than one category. All answers have been sorted into as many categories as relevant, meaning some answers span several categories. This means that the quantified results from qualitative questions may not always add up to 100%. All raw responses within their themed groups have been included in the Appendices.

Non-pertinent responses

Some responses have been labelled as 'non-pertinent'. These were typed responses that were deemed either overly explicit or not understandable. The responses are not included in the report but will be within the Appendices.

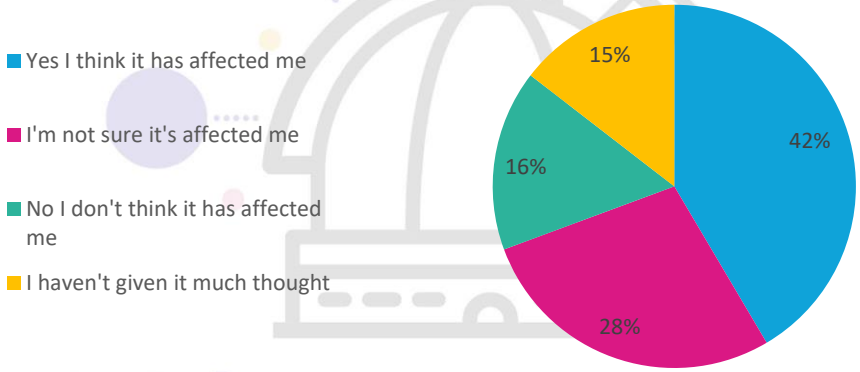
2. Results: General Thoughts

How do you feel about the EU Referendum results?

Almost 400 respondents (396) stated that they don't think it's a good result. Around 20% stated that are either not bothered or haven't given it much thought. Fifty three respondents selected I think it's a good result.

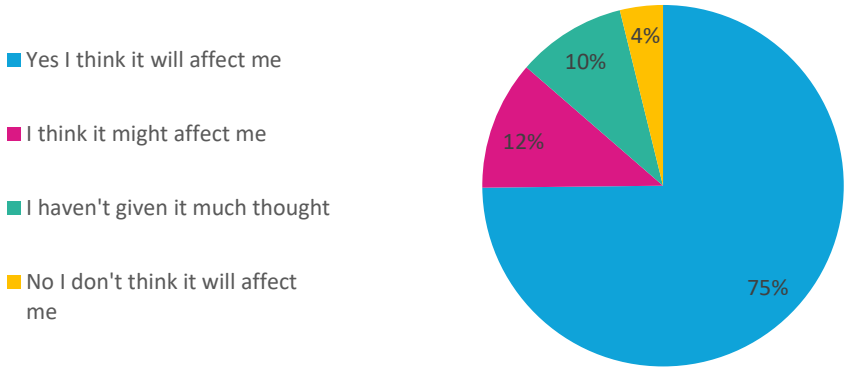
Do you think the EU Referendum result has affected you?

Most respondents (237) agreed that the resulted has affected them, while 92 respondents do not think it has affected them.



Do you think the EU Referendum result will affect you in the future?

Three quarters of respondents believe that the result will affect them in the future. Around 20% selected I think it might affect me or I haven't given it much thought. Twenty two respondents do not believe that the result will affect them in the future.



What is important to you in the Brexit negotiations?

9. Conclusion

Most respondents who completed the survey indicated concerns with Brexit, with three quarters stating that it will affect their future in some way. Travel, the economy, education and employment are the main topics of concern when it comes to Brexit. Respondents have also highlighted that negotiations need to take into account the views of wider society; in particular calling for greater representation for Scotland and young people.

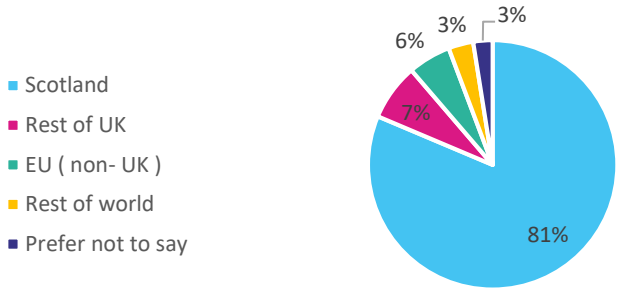
In terms of employment, most respondents feel they have not been affected and are not sure how Brexit will impact workers. However, over half of respondents do think that employment or career opportunities will decrease. Similarly, although most respondents have not allowed Brexit to influence their future studying plans, there is a belief that opportunities for further education will also decrease.

A number of key themes have been identified in the survey, with a spectrum of opinions and experience gathered from across Scotland.

10. Demographics

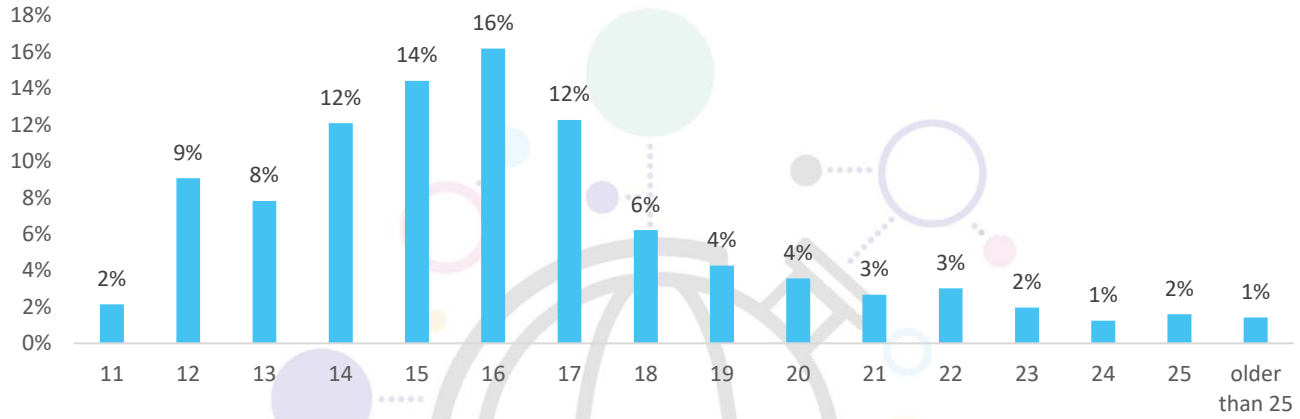
Demographics: What country were you born in?

The majority of respondents (88%) were born in part of the UK, mainly Scotland.



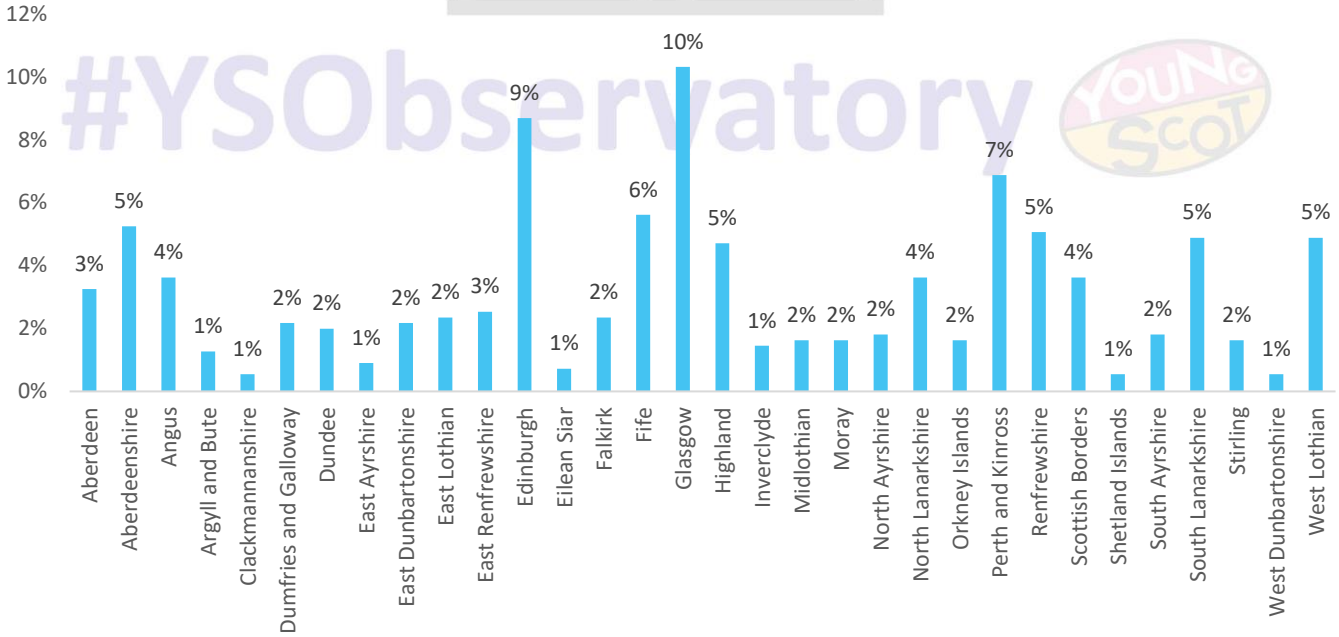
Demographics: How old are you?

Most respondents were in their mid to late teens (14-17 years old).



Demographics: What Local Authority do you live in?

There was representation across all 32 Local Authorities within this sample. The largest number of respondents were from Glasgow (57) or Edinburgh (48).



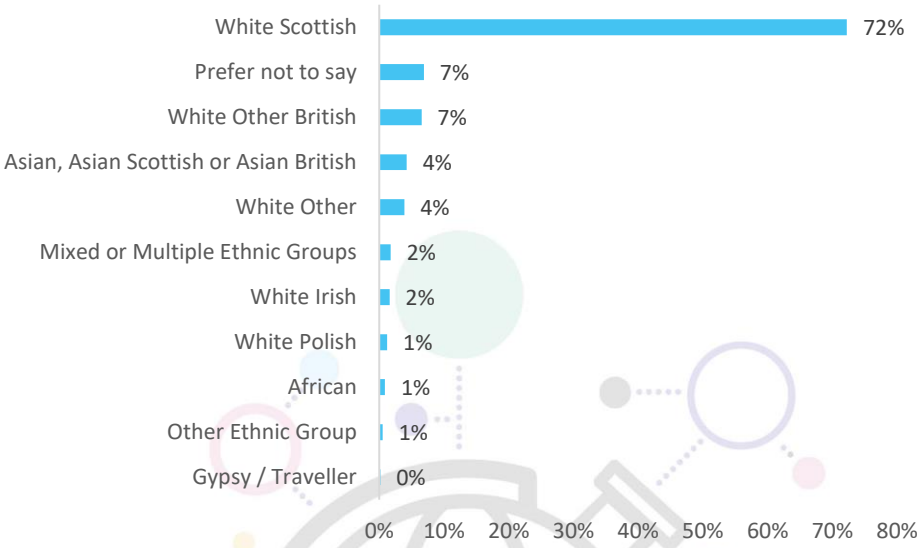
Respondents were also asked to provide the first half of their postcode. These responses have been included in the Appendices as they were freely typed.

Demographics: Gender

Sixty two percent of respondents in the survey identified as female and 31% identified as male. Of the remaining six percent, 13 respondents selected in another way and 23 respondents selected prefer not to say.

Demographics: What is your ethnic group?

Respondents primarily identified their ethnic group as White Scottish. Thirty nine respondents preferred not to state their ethnicity.



Demographics: Do you have a disability, long-term illness or health condition?

Most respondents do not identify themselves as having a disability, long-term illness or health condition. Out of the 52 respondents who said yes, 41 left a typed response (included in the appendix).
